

Using this Website

This website is operated by Harris & Harris which is a Partnership whose Partners and Places of Business are identified on this website.

This page about this website:

- Your Privacy - How we use Information You provide to Us
- Disclaimer – Your use of Information provided by Us
- Our use of cookies, the EU 'cookie' directive and how to disable cookies

Your Privacy - How we use Information You provide to Us

Your privacy is important to us. By providing personal information such as your name and e-mail address via the forms on this website, you agree to us contacting you with regard to the information you request.

Some forms on our website also include a check box asking you for permission for us to add you to our mailing list. This is an opt-in mailing list and your personal information will be used solely by us. Under no circumstances will your personal information be sold or used by any other organisation.

Each email communication you receive from us will have the option to remove your e-mail address from our list. From time to time, we may include links in our e-mails to other web sites which we think may be of interest to you.

Disclaimer – Your use of Information provided by Us

The materials appearing on this website do not constitute legal advice and are provided for general information purposes only. No warranty, whether express or implied is given in relation to such materials. We shall not be liable for any technical, editorial, typographical or other errors or omissions within the information provided on this website.

We are not responsible for the content of any web images or information linked to or from this website.

Our use of cookies, the EU 'cookie' Directive and how to disable cookies

We use Google Analytics, a web analytics service provided by Google. Google Analytics collects 'cookies', which are files placed on your computer to collect standard internet log information and visitor behaviour. This information is sent to Google and is used to evaluate how our website is being used. This enables us to compile statistical reports.

Google Analytics doesn't identify who you are. We do not collect (or allow any third party to collect) personally identifiable information of visitors to our site. We will not associate any data gathered with any personally identifying information. We will not link or seek to link an IP address with the identity of a computer user.

From 26 May 2011 a new European Union directive came into force which requires us to gain consent of our users to download cookies on to their machines. There are various methods we could use to gain users consent. For example, we could use pop-ups; prompting users to tick a box to confirm they give permission for us to download cookies on their machine, or an online form that all users must complete before using the website. We consider both of these are obtrusive and not convenient for you. Therefore, we have taken the decision to promote how we use cookies on our website instead. This will enable users to make an informed decision whether they want to disable this feature.

You can stop cookies being downloaded on to your computer by selecting the appropriate settings on your browser. There is more information about cookies, including how to delete them on the website www.aboutcookies.org. You may also opt out of being tracked by Google Analytics.